

Strategic Data Project Fellowship Info Session

With Harvard University

The Neag School invites graduate students to learn more about the Strategic Data Project Fellowship through Harvard University's Center for Education Policy Research. For two years, Fellows work for a school system or education organization, participate in high-impact professional development with Harvard-affiliated faculty, and use their talent to improve the lives of students. Neag School and SDP Fellow alum Jeremy Landa will share his experience during the info session.
